

Eyes Forward Ears Back

ISSUE # 7 DECEMBER 2009

CORPSEC TSCM NEWSLETTER

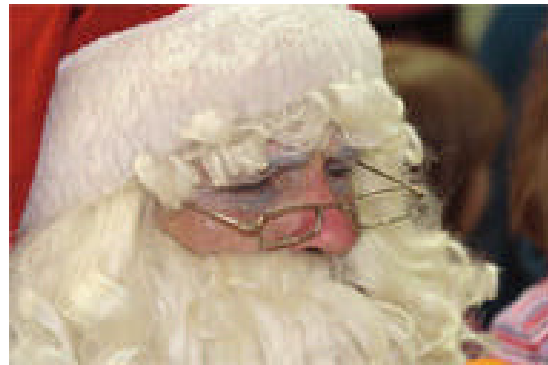

IN THIS ISSUE

- ↳ NSA RECRUITS SANTA CLAUS
- ↳ NORAD SANTA SURVEILLANCE BEGINS TODAY
- ↳ BECOME A SECRET SPY FOR SANTA

NSA RECRUITS SANTA CLAUS' "NAUGHTY OR NICE" GLOBAL SURVEILLANCE SYSTEM TO FIGHT WAR ON TERROR

Written by aeqvitas1 <http://www.thespoof.com>

North Pole - In a recent press conference today, NSA officials announced that they have reached an agreement with North Pole representatives allowing the US government to have access to the countless files of information collected by Santa Claus and his associates regarding the naughtiness and niceness of the 6 billion persons inhabiting the planet. Until recently, Mr. Claus has remained steadfastly neutral on the issue of releasing such sensitive information to any government. "This is definitely a win for the US government," Director Keith Alexander stated, "We've known all along that terrorists are clearly naughty, and this tool will finally help us keep tabs on our enemies."

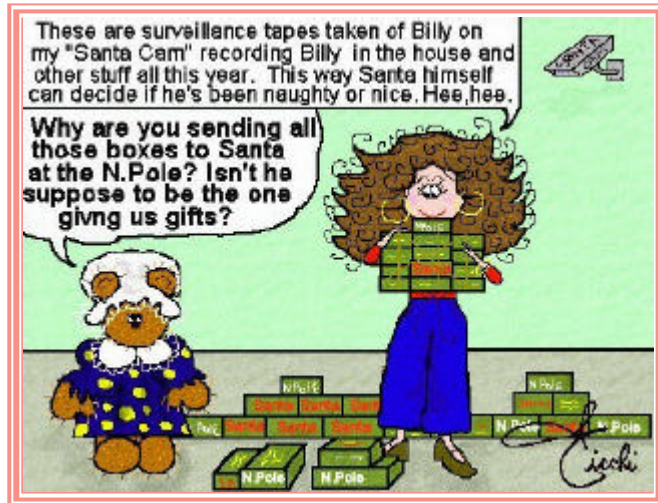

Unavailable for comment

Still others, who refuse to acknowledge the existence of Santa Claus, claim that this is nothing but a ploy by the US Presidential administration to justify the existing unconstitutional surveillance of the American people. The US President responded in a national address by saying: "Anyone who denies the existence of Santa Claus is un-American and clearly wants the terrorists to win. To know when the enemies of freedom everywhere are sleeping and when they are awake is a matter that is of utmost importance to national security, for goodness' sake."

The North Pole representatives stated that they felt this move to be in the best wishes of citizens everywhere, adding "If you've been nice, then you clearly don't have anything to worry about."

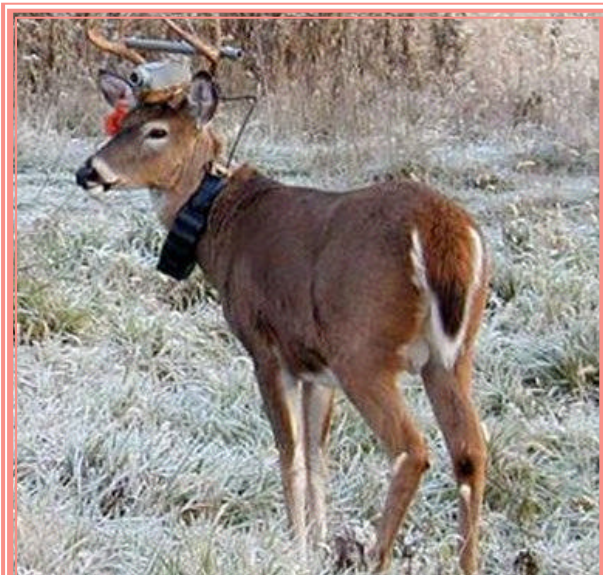

An anonymous naughty citizen worriedly commented that "at least before this alliance, all I had to worry about was getting coal for Christmas. Now I've got to be on my best behavior lest I be sent off to Gitmo."

NORAD'S 2009 SANTA SURVEILLANCE BEGINS

On Christmas Eve, 1955, a young Colorado Springs resident dialed a phone number advertised by Sears Roebuck in a local newspaper that promised to connect him to Santa Claus. Instead, he reached Col. Harry Shoup at what is now called the North American Aerospace Defense Command (NORAD).

"I'll never forget it ... the red phone rang, and it's either the Pentagon calling or the four star general, General Partridge. So I picked it up and said, "Yes, sir, this is Col. Shoup... Sir? "Are you really Santa Claus?" I knew then there was some screw up in the phones. As befit a Cold War officer, Shoup readily agreed to check radar systems for signs of the famous man in a red suit.

NORAD has upgraded Santa's Sleigh with Countermeasures against any possible Grinch or anyone else who wants to steal Christmas, NORAD said, "No way it will Happen".

Half a century later, NORAD continues the tradition of tracking Santa, but now it's all done in 21st century style. Streaming video, "Santa Cams," Google Maps and Google Earth (and Google Analytics, to watch the watchers) will all play a part in following the gift giving journey.

To watch the progress of Santa and his reindeer beginning 01 December go to:

NORAD
<http://www.noradsanta.org/>
or
Australian Air Services
<http://airservicesaustralia.com/santa09/>

BECOME A SECRET SPY FOR SANTA

Agents who are part of Santa's Secret Spy (SSS) Network are now hard at work around the globe. You better watch out!

Santa has a Secret Spy Network and they have a specific purpose: to keep Santa safe. Just like a government with an intelligence operation, Santa has the SSS Network operating for him in dark corners all over the world. The SSS gathers information and sends it to the North Pole.

What kind of information? If a SSS agent finds out about fireworks or other dangers in the skies where they are, they send that information to the North Pole. The information gathered can be great or small. In the past, SSS agents have reported on groups of people who were attempting to kidnap Santa. But most agents usually only find small things such as damaged rooftops or hard-to-see antennas and report those to the North Pole.

Santa has authorised santaupdate.com to find and deputise at least 2,000,000 more agents for Santa's Secret Spy. If this is a job you are interested in, here is what you need to do to be considered:

- ❖ You must be on Santa's Nice list.
- ❖ You have to believe in Santa.
- ❖ You must carry the spirit of Christmas in your heart.
- ❖ You can be any age, boy or girl.

Apply at <http://santaupdate.com/sss.php>

"IT LOOKS LIKE EVERYONE WILL BE GETTING WHAT THEY WANT THIS YEAR...SOMEBODY POSTED MY CREDIT CARD NUMBER ON THE INTERNET!"

AUSTRALIA - NORTH POLE AIR SERVICES AGREEMENT

Australia and the North Pole has an air services agreement that allows Santa Claus to fly through Australian airspace on Christmas Eve. The agreement was reached after rigorous safety checks of Santa's sleigh and reindeer. "The Civil Aviation Safety Authority (CASA) has issued Santa Claus with the necessary air safety approvals, as well as dispensation allowing the sleigh to fly lower than 1,000 feet over built-up areas.

Civil Aviation Regulation 196 requires aircraft to carry the familiar red, green and white navigation lights at night. However, Santa's elf negotiators argued that the lights would distract the reindeer. Luckily, a compromise was reached. One of the reindeer - Rudolph - has a very shiny nose. I am advised that you could even say it glows!" CASA has therefore directed that Rudolph must lead the sleigh on Christmas Eve.

"Santa's air operator's certificate is valid from bedtime on 24 December until early Christmas morning."

"Santa had an excellent aviation safety record. The Australian Transport Safety Bureau (ATSB) says that there has never been an accident in Australia involving flying reindeer.

*The Management and Staff of Corpsec
Would Like to Wish You All,
A Safe and Secure Christmas and a Happy New Year*

